be ascribed the advance to 4 per cent, of the discount rate of the Imperial Bank of Germany at Berlin. [No one imagines that the act of 1875 can now be safely relied upon for the consummation of resumption at the period which it specifies. Eighteen months of the four years of preparation have been permitted to elapse without the accumulation of a dollar of gold reserve in the treasury-nay, with the depletion of about $25,000,000 from the stock held when the act was passed—and it is simply an utter impossibility to acquire the necessary amount of reserve within the thirty months that remain. For this reason, if for no other, the that cotton has been very steady during the week, that the little change there has been was upward. This is encourtes that the war in Europe is now viewed with less alarm, events indicating that it will probably e confined to the Turks and their victime, the larger powers looking on and neutral. This is a relief, but it does not make cotton active, or promise that it will be. England is crushed down with had trade, mills are shortening hours and reducing wages, but goods hang on hand and the demand for them shows no signs of animation. Holders of cotton are more confident than they were week ago, but nobody looks for any material advance, even under the best of circumstances, as long as the naws of the growing crop continues to be as cheer'ul as at present. This week heavy flying rains have been sisking the parched grounds in many parts, to the great advantage of the growing corn. The last weekly review of the New York Bulletin said: "As day after day brought its decline, especially ou actual cotton, the heretofore most sanguine believers in a recovery seemed to be overcome with a sort of apathy which prevented both action and argu-ment, and induced a quiet submission to wint appeared to be the inevitable. From abroad the accounts have been very discouraging, the naturally slow condition of affairs being greatly inten-sified by the growth of the war-cloud in the east, while the domestic situation has shown extremely light consumptive wants and generally favorable advices from all parts of the producing district, both as to progress and quantity of crop. In short, the legitimate influence of pos-itive supply and demand, shorn of all theoretical "points," seems to be the base upon which current operations. planned, and the result is favorable to buyers. The English manufacturers are handling supplies in a very slow, cautious manner still, and notwithstanding the recent decline on cotton, there is constant complaint of want of margin on production, with threatened and accomplished reduction in running time, and the same holds good on home account. Our spinners continue to be slow, cautious and indifferent buyers, taking absolutely nothing beyond the most urgent necessity, while many of the smaller mills are quietly shutting up, and now and then a larger concers, because 'there is no money in it.' Under the circumstances, therefore, the supplies in sight are considered as just a little more than owners will care to carry, especially with only a few weeks intervening before a new and no doubt pretty full crop will be seeking a market." The decline in silver—which has this week quoted as low as 461 in London and $1 gold an ounce in New York—has essisted to embarrass cotton. Watts & Co.'s last Liverpool circular said: "Some favorable prospects have been counterbalanced by a further erious decline in the value of silver, and consequently in the rate of exchange in Bombay and Calcutta. The decline in exchange at Bombay and Calcutta during the week has amounted to rather more than 21 per cent. Such a heavy decline as this not only operates greatly to the prejudice of those who have shipped goods to India, China and other countries where sliver is the monetary easis, but it upsets all calculations as to future operation. Hence business at Manchester has this week been very dull, and spinners in consequence have bought but little cotton in this market, Another prominent source of depression is found in the continued pressure to sell future deliveries at prices relatively lower than spot quotations. For instance, middling uplands are now quoted at 63 16J, or 1-16d more than September deliveries can be bought for; if, there ore, a holder of cotton thinks prices will improve, there is not only to inducement for him to hold, but a positive inducement for him to sell, and thus save, not only the difference of 1-18d in prices, but interest and charges for say two mouths and a haif. The low grades of American cotton, such as range in value from 41d to 51d, has, for the past week or two, been in fair demand. It appears that such trade as there is at Manchester, is running largely on the eay 120,000 bales, against 185,000 last year, spinners are resorting largely to the use of low American. At present

On contracts the amount of business was pretty fair, and during the early portion of the day the tone appeared quite firm, so much so that sellers were enabled to gain, in some cases, an additional advance of 1 16c per pound. The basis of improvement was to be found in the stronger Liverpool accounts and the continued call for supplies through short notices on the part of exporters. It was evident, however, that buyers were not quite so auxious as the day advanced, and toward the closs some unloading took place, which carried values back all they had gained on the early months and a fraction lower on later contracts, closing weak. The recent demand for short notices is understood to come from buyers on English account "short" on the Liverpool market and seeking stock here to meet their engagements. This call is now thought to be met, and the markst weakened in consequence." Quotations at the Memphis cotton exchange were as follows:

ket has been the key to the situation last. Some new Tennessee flour was lately. The depression there has become worse than has been known for many years, and low as cotton is the price of at $1@1 05, the mills running day and night on the new crop. The Chicago goods and yarns is relatively much low-er. Indeed, we believe we are within the mark when we say that a further Telegram, received here yesterday by Huls & Co., reported the wheat receipts at 47,000 bushels, August 93 c; September, 94 [c; corn receipts, 175,000 bushels, Augus, 45c; September, 45 [c; crecip; of hogs, 8000; pork, August, $19 55; September, $19 75; lard, August, $11; September, $11 10; clear rib, August, $10 30, September, $10 50. RIVER CHRONICLE

Weather and Rivers. The weather has been principally hot since our last report, and muchly variegated in a barometrical point of view. All day Sunday the heavens were black with clouds, from which deep intonations of heaven's artillery awed the timid, and set us to cogitating-'Oh, what will become of the poor little bird, When the muttering storm in the distance is heard."

We continued to cogitate, the aforesaid oird continued to warble, and the storm continued to mutter, but no rain fell, the bird "kept his seat," and our anxiety was relieved. A decline is noted in the river here at last, and we hope we are rafe from any damaging high water. Something is the matter with the signal observer's quotations at St. Louis or else the bottom has fallen out of creation at that point. We append the of-
